By Jessica Daling

THE PHILIPPINES will get an aid package worth P4.7 billion from the European Union (EU) over the next three years aimed at helping the country's marginalized sectors.

Foreign Affairs Secretary Dela Alava and Ambassador Antonio de Kato, head of the European Commission in the Philippines, signed the financing agreement on Tuesday.

European Court Chief Justice (Rafael David J. and Ombudsman Jeannette Morales witnessed the signing.

Among the programs to be financed by the aid package is a project to give the poor more access to the justice system and another project to help the government fight corruption.

Response to RP priorities

Following the signing, Alava thanked De Kato for the EU's continuing help to the Philippines. The EC is the policy-making and implementing body of the 27-member EU.

In a statement, de Kato said the aid is "in response to priorities set by the government, more specifically in areas of governance, trade facilitation, combating corruption, poverty reduction and peace and development."

The EU-aided projects, worth 12 million euros, would be implemented in the next three years through a series of capacity-building programs and other support activities geared towards improving good governance.

Barangays covered

The financing agreement on "improving effectiveness in Justice Policy" has two sub-projects: Access to Justice for the Poor and Corruption Prevention.

To improve the poor's access to the justice system, some 3,000 poor barangays in 100 of the country's poorest municipalities in the country will be covered by the project. The project would include the following sub-projects: the Supreme Court and municipal courts, the national police, the Philippine National Police Academy and the interior, civil service and justice departments.

Sensitive police, judiciary

The project would strengthen law enforcement and the judiciary and make information accessible to the disadvantaged and empower people of the barangays, particularly women and children, to protect justice.

It would also reinforce the police and the judiciary in towards the needs of the poor and the rights of women and children and advocate legislative measures to meet international commitments in terms of the rights of women and children.

To prevent corruption, the project aims to enhance the capacities of the Office of the Ombudsman and certain civil society organizations and government agencies.

Civil society groups

Specifically, it would train 1,200 managers in government agencies in identifying risk factors for corruption and how to tackle them. Another 800 members of civil society groups would be trained in government monitoring, participatory auditing and democracy work.

The project would support build the capacities of the civil society in promoting corruption in cooperation with the Ombudsman, up to a wide exposition from the public in preventing and reporting corruption by providing information to different barangays, work with other government agencies to reduce the risks of corruption in their tasks through training of managers and strengthening the management of the Ombudsman information system.

Israel honors Pinay blast victim

By Philip C. Tobias

ISRAEL honored Filipino caregiver Maria Antonia Saldana, who was killed in a deadly terrorist attack in Jerusalem last year.

Her name and that of 10 other victims were inscribed in Hebrew on a stone plaque and placed on a synagogue wall in the Holy City. The memorial was unveiled on Aug. 11 in a ceremony attended by high-ranking Israeli officials, including Ambassador Meir El-Lapid and Philippine Ambassador to Israel Antonio C. Madina, as well as members of the Knesset and their relatives.

"During the service, a deeply moving and emotional Kabbalah Jewish prayer for the dead was sung for Antonia and the other victims by Rabbi David Shalom," Madina said. Foreign Affairs Secretary Dela Alava also attended.

In Manila, Alava thanked the Israeli government for honoring Saldana.

"I join the entire nation and Filipino members all over the world in mourning the death of Maria Antonia Saldana, who paid the ultimate price in a terror land while working a better life for her family and loved ones back home in the Philippines," she said.

"There is a moment in the indestructible Filipino spirit. This should be a strong reason to lay on a modern-day hero," she added.

Saldana and 10 others were killed when a Palestinian man threw himself up in a crowded bus in the Jewish neighborhood of Shomai Haresh on Aug. 18, 2007.

Killed were four babies, three teenagers, 13 adults and the suicide bomber. Over 120 others were seriously injured. Some of the survivors, many of them orphans, for him, attended the ceremony.

Saldana, 45, and a nurse of Holy City Segrus Orphaned, was on her way to a secret job as a housewife when she was the 11th killed.

"She was not immediately identified as the blast that ripped the bus was wrong," she said.

"Israeli Jewish investigators had to ask for her personal belongings as they could positively identify Antonia through DNA testing," she added.

US forces kill 90 Iraqi insurgents

Truce holds in holy city of Najaf

BAGHDAD—US forces killed around 90 insurgents in Iraqi towns north and south of Baghdad on Saturday. Insurgents appeared to be holding in the holy city of Najaf despite a radical cleric's threat to fight to the death.

The fresh offensive erupted on the eve of a national anniversary aimed at restoring Iraq's progressive secular democracy, already overshadowed by a Muslim cleric's threat to fight to the death.

The US military said it had killed about 90 fighters near the northern town of Tikrit, a heavily Shiite Muslim area where US troops have fought against Iraqis in the past.

US troops also killed about 100 fighters in the southern town of Najaf, a heavily Shiite Muslim area where US troops have fought against Iraqis in the past.

Talk of the Town

Is the Vatican against feminism?

TO BE AN IMPETUS for "dialogue with all men and women of good will" is one of the aims of the Congregation for the Doctrine of the Faith when it issued the "Letter to the Bishops of the Catholic Church on the Collaboration of Men and Women in the Church and in the World."

The letter is sent as "a starting point for further examination in the Church."

Issued of dialogue, the letter, released by Joseph Cardinal Ratzinger, has stirred discussion in the streets and in Congress from militant women in the country. Ratzinger is the head of the Congregation, the Vatican department in charge of safeguarding and interpreting doctrine.

The letter said many women felt that they had to be adversaries of men in order to be themselves. Third with the abuse of power, the answer for women is to seek power.

This process leads to opposition between men and women... which has to cause tension and debate on the structure of the family."

It also reinforced the attempt of feminism to raise gender differences. "The obscuring of the difference... inspired ideologies, which for example, call into question the family. In its natural two-parent structure of mother and father, and make homosexuality and heterosexuality virtually equivalent, in a new model of polysexual sexuality."

With broadness from feminism, Archbishop Oscar E. Cruz suggested that the letter be read in its entirety to avoid misconceptions, to which women's groups reacted that they had read the document thoroughly.

The bishops and women's groups may well try holding a dialogue to discuss the letter and to clear any misconception.

RAMOS, being raised feelings for the natural public school teacher Narciso Naran. She is a teacher who used to work and drinking into the river, as she sees the bald headlands of this city of Misamis Occidental.

Narciso remembers returning this scene on July 31 last year. "This is a very beautiful island," she said, "but the river is so polluted."

But Narciso also told her the story of how she saw the river in its natural state. It was a story of a river that was a source of life and a source of life for the people of Tangub City.

City administrator Narciso and her colleagues were called off during the river cleanup. They were called off during the river cleanup. They were called off during the river cleanup.

Tangub City

In 1992, just as the Philippines was celebrating its 40th anniversary, a book titled "Mindanao in 12 parts" was published. The book is a collection of 12 stories, each written by a different author. The stories are set in different parts of Mindanao, and they tell the story of the people who live there.

Being a 12-part story, the book is a collection of 12 stories, each written by a different author. The stories are set in different parts of Mindanao, and they tell the story of the people who live there.

Walking tall with GMA

Our diminutive but brainy President is an excellent example that great things come in small packages

Time management is really not of the more difficult tasks one has to do these days. This is especially so for someone who doesn't have a 9-to-5 job. When one does not have to rise in the middle of the night for more compensation, because there is no definite line between work and play.

In most individual and career design firms, there are times when you can be occupied with projects and then there are the day days, when you still can be finishing their demands waiting to pour out. It is like this is like that in their life. One day you wake up with a full schedule, then after just 15 minutes of time are up, you're back to back with no time to spare.

Keeping the proper balance of family, work, exercise and social is the most challenging part of my life. Often, I understand my own, because, making his year, who knows is always out of sight. My day job has been to explain to him that his name has the right stuff in the social world and so he is the person.

THE WELL-MANICURED gardens behind The Manor

Camp John Hay's development tries to harmonize commercial aspirations with nature preservation

The best of both worlds at Camp John Hay

Text and photos by Bette V. Burdick

SOME people say a trip to Baguio City would not be complete without a visit to Camp John Hay, a 250-hectare preserve and nature land declared with over 250,000-year trees. They might just be right.

The camp is one of the few places in Baguio where you can get close to nature once again. Here, you can grow a sunset walk, watch the butterflies as just as on the deck of the historic Mount Ararat Hotel as for a few hours.

John Hay occupies the best of both worlds: land development and nature preservation. Most of the camp's structures located at the heart of the preserve are surrounded by lush greenery. They have public, lush gardens and pleasant picnic spots, offering an escape from the hustle and bustle of the city.

Once a military camp for the Philippine Army, the camp was turned over to the Department of Tourism in 1991. The Philippine government took over the camp and eventually turned it into a national park for recreation and a national heritage site.

Now Camp John Hay Development Corp. (CJHD) and the John Hay Management Corp. are working together to develop the camp. The CJHD is a private company, while the John Hay Management Corp. is a government-owned enterprise.

Eco-friendly development

While development has the old recreation status in proper to a world-class resort, they want to ensure that natural areas remain intact. They believe development should not destroy nature but "enhance it."

"There is a lot of history even doing things are protected in a lot of ways. In fact, we have been experts from the US to do 'tree surgery' on some dying trees about 200 years ago. We can't just let them die because most of these trees are century-old," says John Hay, vice president for marketing and sales of CJHD.

But of the same development is the ongoing construction of recreational areas for the camp. The camp is also the site of a new class of modern resorts. "With the future, we will build every Filipino family dream of a new kind of lifestyle in a beautiful, peaceful environment," says John Hay.

Having a lot in the future means being surrounded by a lush green forest, away from the noise, pollution and traffic of the city. You can spend your free time gardening, hiking and not have to go far to enjoy a game of golf in well-manicured lawns.

"Majority of the people who have already (camped) here have said that they have never had a better time in a resort before," says John Hay.

The camp offers 70 prime lots in a 50-acre lot to select clients. Different options are available depending on your budget.

"The Country House near the golf course is a three-story, three-bedroom house with a lot of amenities."

The Country Log House is a single-story house with a lot of amenities. It is a perfect place for a family or a group of friends to stay.

"There are other lots, but they are not as big as these. They are perfect for a family or a group of friends to stay."

Superb facilities

Complementing the residential development project of the camp are the wide range of facilities and amenities offered to the family.

The world-renowned 18-hole, par 36 golf course is one of the best in the Philippines. The clubhouse, bar, dining and barbeque areas, tennis and tennis courts, and other amenities are also available.

The Manor, built in the 1920s, is a historic building that has been restored to its original glory. It is a perfect place for a family or a group of friends to stay.

The Manor originally had a 70,000-sq-ft area, but it was reduced to 10,000-sq-ft. The Manor is a perfect place for a family or a group of friends to stay.

The fully operational Camp John Hay Golf Course and Cultural Center is the heart of what is going to be the community's hub. The center is perfect for conventions, seminars, exhibits, stage plays, concerts and special social events. The impressive two-level culture hall can accommodate 5,000 people for the size of the last Philippine Congress.

Something for everyone

Tradition are preserved at the camp both for human interest and historical purposes. The living museum called the CBI Historical Center is a collection of historical artifacts and photos that tell the story of the camp. The CBI is a perfect place for a family or a group of friends to stay.

THE BAROTO is an efficient transport system among the marsh-dwellers and nipa palm producers in the more far-flung areas of the Babuyan islands.

In Sitio Macanaya, Aparri, the wooden-constructed vessel helps people traverse the Cagayan River, onward to Babuyan Channel, from here to Magbit Beach in Camiguin (not the islands in Northern Mindanao), and even farther to the islands of Fuga, Calayan, Dalupiri and Babuyan Claro.

The Babuyan group of islands lies in the northern part of Aparri, Cagayan. It is composed of these five island-barangays and set apart by three to five travel hours by boat; Camiguin Island is four hours away from Aparri; Fuga and Calayan are three hours away from Camiguin; Dalupiri is three-and-a-half hours away; and Babuyan Claro, four to five hours.

Among these, only Camiguin and Calayan are the most habitable. Fuga Islands are the densely populated. Babuyan Claro is collared by gigantic waves and hut-size boulders that bar its coastline.

"I suppose our areas could be best described as crime-, theft- and robbery-free, and peaceful. We have a laid-back ambience, a visual feast of nature wonder on land and on open water and a spectacular view of two mountain ranges that looked like the serries of bygone years," said Camiguin's barangay captain Florencio de Guzman.

EVEN before Bench introduced underwear, denim had already played a significant segment of its business.

Through Bench's eyes, denim conformation is directly linked to color, mostly saying they remain firm about popular products. They admit denim and jeans in general are among the brand's top sellers—and there's another they introduced the Overhauled line.

As the Western market propelled denim to high fashion status, Bench has kept its focus with the global trend and updated its distribution.

The Bench line has spawned a multi-brand that extends to shoes and scents

Overhauled's fantastic feat

BY LINDA WATTS

The phenomenon paved the way for the birth of Overhauled in 2006. Benito's success as motivational mega-brands designer jeans. Details of the brand Overhauled pants were signed, rounded, deconstructed and more.

It was for the top segment of the market, says Jennifer Lee, Sears Corp.'s marketing division manager. The store went up to date and a much more cutting-edge than regular Benito and Hershman's.

The concept of Overhauled was to create a market that had suggested a taste for flare and modern jeans styles, but had a budget of under $1,000.

Multi-brand

In the Beach location, Overhauled checked multi-brands. Four years on, Overhauled has spawned their shirts and women's tops, sweaters, bags and accessories, footwear and even fragrances—another branding feat for the 11-year-old multi-brand company.

But more with its success, Beach doesn't being labeled by it. It points to be called the leader of brand brands, says Lee. Lee, president of Blue Shirts Corp., same company as Scott Corp., which owns the Beach brand. Blue Shirts introduced Beach garments.

"We follow global trends," explains Lee. "We keep in mind to come up with new silhouettes, fabrics and textures. Maintaining good quality is our priority. At the same time, we keep our products affordable."

Overhauled's line also and super-low also come both for men and women have copyright protected trademarks popularity even with a largely style-savvy mass market, according to Lee. However, its stretch fabrics are still among the most popular.

"It's always a challenge for us to think of products that will click with the local market," he explains.

Tighty pieces of all Beach merchandise is made locally, although some fabrics and the prints are sourced abroad.

Since the fragrance line made here, adds Lee. The Overhauled fragrance comes in five scents that can be used alone or mixed to create a unique, personal scent.

Lee says males and "whiskers" on their denim are done by hand, accessories are mostly white.

Recently, the Overhauled line introduced denim with little rips, which looks like jeans a three-dimensional printed look.

Similar to designer brands, new pieces have back-pocket logo patches or silhouettes and printed patch logos. Other pieces have beach scenes in letters and motifs. It will be denim line and the spotlight from the undergarments in Beach's Aug. 18 fashion show's latest collection.

But will Overhauled's latest collection click with Beach fans? Click could be an underestimation.
